Maria Anna insists she be present at the hearing. Insufficient evidence of witchcraft, but Maximilian rules they be kept in custody pending further investigation. They will continue in the custody of the archduchess, but will reside with the English Ladies. | BAVAR-C38 | Personally, Max takes the filing of charges as confirmation of Mechthilde's mendacity and disloyalty. Maria Anna's assertiveness sours him further on his Hapsburg bride-to-be. |

Maria Anna selects Countess Polyxena to take her place. | BAVAR-C41,C46 | A few days before the escape. The "miscalculation" is a ruse: Lukretia's departure is actually to cover up a small leak in the plans. Polyxena is not among the trusted, and her new role will keep her busy. |

| | | Mid- to Late July | Dresden | | Gretchen is eventually convinced to wear armor for the expedition, and designates Jozef and Lukasz to be her personal bodyguards. | OTTOMAN-C34 | |
| | | Mid- to Late July | Grantville | | Veleda Riddle and the Episcopalian congregation discuss the possibility of a female priest. | OTTOMAN-C34 | If anyone can handle that job, it's Ursula under Gretchen's protection. |
| | | Mid- to Late July | Luebeck | | Admiral and Mary Simpson receive a telegram from Veleda Riddle on the subject of a female Episcopal priest. Mary starts planning a visit to Dresden. | OTTOMAN-C34 | Mary Simpson is in Luebeck for a visit with her husband. | | | by August | in the USE | | Machine guns are under development, but they are balky and prone to jamming. | OTTOMAN-C43 | None are currently combat-ready. |
| | | Late July or early August | Vienna | | The Ottomans attack. Using an unexpectedly large number of airships, rockets, and steam tanks to suppress normal defensive fire, Turkish troops are able to storm the walls and get into the city. | OTTOMAN-C36-40 | Less than 3 weeks after sapping operations were begun. Leopold stays to rally the last of the defenders before they, too, must flee. |
| | | Late July or early August | Vienna | | Cecelia Renata is injured in the initial stages of the attack, Judy & Minnie carry her to safety, first to the Hofburg and then to the hidden cellars. | OTTOMAN-C38,40 | Leopold joins them, having managed to recover most of a radio before doing so. |
| | | Late July or early August | Magdeburg | | The FoJP party and CoC principles go over incoming election returns; the numbers favor the FoJP to be the majority in parliament. The meeting is interrupted by an alarming telegram from Linz. | OTTOMAN-C35 | Presumably the telegram is about the fall of Vienna, detailed in following chapters. This chapter is nominally set in July, the ones detailing the attack are nominally set in August. Unclear if the assault day itself is in late July or early August, and how much delay from fall of city to telegram arriving. |
| | | August | Deggendorf, Bavaria | | Tom succeeds in recovering the two naval guns that had been on the capsized barge. | Inferred from OTTOMAN-C47 | Tom was last seen dealing with Ursula, with salvage operations still in progress, next seen on the Magdeburg and the guns next mentioned being positioned near Linz. |

| | | August | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | | Murad has soldiers who disobeyed his orders against looting impaled as examples to the others. | OTTOMAN-C57 | This perks up the spirits of those wounded when taking the city: they didn't miss out on loot. |

| | | August | Magdeburg | | Election results finalized: the FoJP has a majority, with Ed Piazza the prime-minister-to-be. | OTTOMAN-C44 | |
| | | August | Linz | | An airstrip is also being cleared at Linz. | OTTOMAN-C41 | Presumably some of the people who set up the airfield at Race Track City are among the evacuees in Linz and can assist with this. |
| | | August | Prague | | Noelle gets Duke Albrecht of Bavaria to agree to whatever the terms of the Bavarian settlement will be. | OTTOMAN-C41 | |

| | | August | near Legnica/Liegnitz, Lower Silesia | | A group of Holk's cavalry scouts attempt to ambush Gretchen while she's ahead of the main Saxon force and separated from Jozef & Lukasz. She keeps cool under pressure and fires back with her Glock 17 as Jozef & Lukasz race back to assist. | OTTOMAN-C42 | Gretchen gets a little banged up, but nothing serious thanks to the armor she'd been complaining about. Total score: of 12 men, Jozef killed 2, Lukasz killed 3, and Gretchen killed 6 (with the one remaining as prisoner). |
| | | August | Lower Silesia | | Gretchen decides to change strategy: instead of looking for Holk, force Holk to come to them. | OTTOMAN-C42 | |
| | | August | Freising | | Mike leaves enough troops at Munich to blockade the city and continue reducing its defenses, and begins moving the rest of his forces to Austria. | OTTOMAN-C43 | |
| | | August | Munich | | Piccolomini worries that Max will order a sortie, since he wants to keep his army as intact as possible. | OTTOMAN-C43 | With an army, he has good employment prospects in Italy. |
| | | August | Grantville | | Rebecca wrangles with Hal Smith and Bob Kelly, at odds over plane designs that can handle the primitive machine guns currently under development. | OTTOMAN-C43 | They still don't agree on a design, but she gets them to commit to actually building the ones they are planning. |
| | | August | Prague; Amberg; Grantville | | Eddie Junker helps Noelle shuttle Bavarian heirs and Duke Albrecht to Freising, then goes Grantville to bring Rebecca there. | OTTOMAN-C43 | |
| | | August | Luebeck | | Admiral Simpson sends his aide Captain Franz-Leo Chomse to temporarily act as prime-minister-to-be Ed Piazza's factotum while Ed assembles his own staff. Simpson sends along a suggestion that the Marines be formally established as official guards for the Prime Minister's person and residence, replacing the CoCers informally acting in that role. | OTTOMAN-C44 | Mary Simpson also sends a suggestion on establishing a formal PM's residence, like up-time Number 10 Downing Street. |
| | | August | Magdeburg | | Ed Piazza formally becomes Prime Minister. His first act is to officially make Rebecca Secretary of State. | OTTOMAN-C44 | She can now shift from making preparations (in Freising) to directly negotiations to resolve the Bavarian situation. |
| | | August | Munich | | Rebecca meets with Piccolomini, who is negotiating on Max's behalf. They quickly reach a settlement: Max to go into exile in Italy, escorted by Piccolomini and his army. | OTTOMAN-C44 | Piccolomini is allowed most of his army, minus Bavarian-owned artillery. Albrecht to enter Munich the day after they leave. |
| | | August | Hoorn | | Final work on the Magdeburg is sped up due to the Ottoman victory, and it lifts off for Bavaria. Plan is for Julie Mackay to sharpshoot from the airship. | OTTOMAN-C45 | Ship-mounted weapons still too experimental to try. In Freising, Julie radios Dell Beckworth in Suhl for a light 50. |
| | | August | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | | Murad executes the crew of the one airship which failed its mission, and promotes the crew of one that took casualties from groundfire but pressed attack. | OTTOMAN-C45 | The mission in question being the fire-bombing of Austrian defensive positions during the assault. |

| | | Late August | Breslau/Wroclaw | | Gretchen meets with city councilmen and orders that farmers in the countryside may shelter within the cities and pen livestock outside the city walls. | OTTOMAN-C46 | To deprive Holk's men of forage. She rolls over notables who protest. |

Planning begins for more extensive airship facilities. | OTTOMAN-C47 | Other locations are closer to the action, but are more vulnerable to interference (political and military). |
| | | Early September | Freising | | The Albatross arrives from Suhl with the gun Julie asked for, and with Dell Beckwith. | OTTOMAN-C47 | The gun is a prototype, and so he may be needed to fix any problems. Plus he wouldn't miss this action. |
| | | Early September | Linz | | The various allied forces discuss overall command structure. Mike proposes asking Gustavus Adolphus to take overall command, with Janos Drugeth acting as his aide. Ferdinand likes the proposal. | OTTOMAN-C47 | Dr. Nichols will be on hand to treat Gustav if he has a seizure. |
| | | Early September | Freising | | The Magdeburg arrives, drops Rita off. | OTTOMAN-C47 | Inferred: Rita then heads for Munich. |

| | | September | Breslau/Wroclaw | | Gretchen institutes price controls to ensure the villagers now sheltering in the cities are not gouged. | OTTOMAN-C52 | |
| | | September | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | | The Ottoman army moves out for Linz. | OTTOMAN-C50 | Takes several days for the bulk of the army to move out. |

| M: | Date | Month/season | Location | Seq | Event | Citation | Notes |
|----|------|--------------|--------------------------------|------|--|----------------------|---|
| | | September | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | | Minnie briefly scouts outside the hiding place, devises a plan to retrieve items she and Denise put in storage when there came to town. | OTTOMAN-C50 | They hadn't heard any screaming, so figure Murad probably didn't order any massacres. |
| | | September | confluence of Danube and Traun | | Gustav decides on the positions his forces will take, including the 2 naval rifles that Mike ensured would be ready. Planes and speedboat provide excellent recon of Murad's movements. | OTTOMAN-C51 | The Magdeburg needs another 4 days for additional armor fitting and modifications. |
| | | September | Steyregg | | Across the Danube from Linz, Jeff and Thorsten pick their ground and prepare positions. | OTTOMAN-C51 | They set up HQ in the town's castle until they have to take to the field. |
| | | September | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | | Judy et al. hoist bucketfuls of old crap from the oubliette, to be used in Minnie's disguise. | OTTOMAN-C51 | They'll need to let it dry for a while, so that she can hide things in it. |
| | | September | near Brzeg | | On a scouting flight, Christin George spots a Piast castle with soldiers. | OTTOMAN-C51 | Jozef identifies it as the Tower of Lions, just the sort of place Holk would hole up. |
| | | September | Breslau/Wroclaw | BS-2 | Gretchen orders the Saxon army to move out against Holk's suspected position the day after tomorrow. Will take two days for them to reach it. | OTTOMAN-C52 | Nasi has ordered Eddie to stay in Breslau for the duration, so the plane will stay available. Rebecca is still in town. [Battle of Steyregg (BS) – 2] |
| | | September | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | BS-2 | Minnie preps her disguise, a scraggly, shit-covered night-soil collector. She'll go out the day after tomorrow, when the shit has finished drying. | OTTOMAN-C52 | |
| | | September | Steyregg | BS-2 | Mike surveys Jeff's fieldworks, designed to shield from rockets, and maybe incendiaries. | OTTOMAN-C52 | Recon reports indicate enemy attack the day after tomorrow. |
| | | September | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | BS | Minnie ventures out disguised as a scraggly, stinking, middle aged, night soil worker. Among her equipment are parts to get the radio Leo brought working. |
| | | September | Breslau/Wroclaw | BS | The Saxon Army sets out for Brzeg. People line the roads to gawk at her and her army, heading to take on Holk. | OTTOMAN-C53 | Gretchen is some 5 months pregnant. Complains about the armor, but everyone else thinks it boosts morale. |
| | | September | Linz | BS | Mellissa Mailey meets with the Austrian Emperor and empress, convinces/steamrolls them into agreeing that she and the empress should tend to wounded soldiers in the hospital that's been set up. | OTTOMAN-C54 | |
| | | September | near Brzeg | BS | Steady Girl makes its bombing run on the Piast castle. Holk is killed, but in the confusion his men don't know that. Attempts to locate him over the next few days produce false leads, sending them on wild goose-chases. | OTTOMAN-C55 | To prevent challenges, Holk didn't have a clear second in command. None of his senior officers want to take overall command lest Holk show up and charge them with mutiny. |
| | | September | confluence of Danube and Traun | BS | The naval guns destroy several barges of janissaries attempting to take and hold the river confluence. | OTTOMAN-C54 | Murad calls off the river attack due to excessive losses. |
| | | September | near Steyregg | BS | The Magdeburg engages the Turkish air fleet. Julie's sharpshooting disables or destroys several Ottoman airships, causing Murad to recall his outmatched flotilla before most can lay smoke and drop incendiaries. | OTTOMAN-C53,54,56,57 | Only two of the Ottoman airships break through to drop bombs, but are ineffective. Murad summons his engineers and weapons designers, and orders them to make their own "Joolis". |

Only one rocket volley is launched, causing minimal damage. | OTTOMAN-C57 | Gustav suffers a seizure just before the artillery opens up. Nichols treats him while Janos tends to military business. |

| | | September | near Steyregg | BS | Thorsten Engler spots a subtle terrain advantage that will give the volley guns greater effect against the Turkish cavalry. He moves his units to that position. Jeff, then Mike, order their units forward to support. | OTTOMAN-C58 | Pappenheim sees what Engler did and figures out the plan. He orders the Black Cuirassiers to mount up. |
| | | September | near Steyregg | BS | The Ottoman cavalry makes what is perhaps the largest cavalry charge in Europe since ancient times. The terrain bottlenecks and bunches them; Engler's volley guns chew them badly with repeated volleys. The sheer numbers let some get through, but first Hangman and then Mike's regiments arrive to close the gaps and force the Turks back. Pappenheim's Black Cuirassiers arrive, turning the retreat into a route. | OTTOMAN-C58 | Engler is badly injured in the course of the battle |
| | | September | Breslau/Wroclaw | BS+1 | Denise finds her mother was celebrating the bombing run success with Jozef. | OTTOMAN-C55 | She's a bit shocked, until she realizes it's been nearly a year and a half since her father died. |
| | | September | near Brzeg | BS+1 ? | Holk's men learn of an army nearing Brzeg. Polish battle flags have been spotted, so they think King Wladyslaw has sent an expedition against them for their depredations. They bug out, most heading for Russia – a civil war is brewing there, rumor has it. | OTTOMAN-C55 | The flags are Lukasz's. Holk's true status (i.e., dead) remains unknown and he becomes a troll-like figure in Silesian legends. |
| | | September | Linz | BS+? | Thorsten Engler wakes up from his injuries, to find Gustav virtually festooning him with medals and a promotion to full colonel. While recovering he's to be sent back to Magdeburg to recruit three new divisions. | OTTOMAN-C59 | Engler has a broken leg, broken ribs, possibly a slipped disk, and Nichols is pretty sure a ruptured spleen, though not severely enough to require surgery. |
| | | September | Breslau/Wroclaw | | Jozef finishes another transmission to Koniecpolski. It's the first message he was able to send in over 2 weeks. | OTTOMAN-C59 | The message? "Nothing to report." |
| | | September | Linz | | Planning underway for airship defenses, since Murad is certain to start employing his own sharpshooters. Dell Beckworth has already started planning a new gun based on the WW2 Lahti anti-tank rifle. | OTTOMAN-C59 | Gustav stifles a turf-war move by the Air Force to take control of airship operations. |
| | | September | Beç (Turkish-occupied Vienna) | | Minnie gets the radio working, carefully extends an antenna, and sends a coded message to Don Francisco giving the basics of their situation. | OTTOMAN-C59 | He flies to Linz. Inferred: At some point after the bombing run, Eddie was recalled from Breslau to Prague. |
| | | September | Brzeg | | Gretchen holds court in Brzeg's largest tavern. She rolls over complaints and demands from the town authorities. Lukasz and Jozef are to organize a farmer's militia, so that they won't have to rely on the city militias. | OTTOMAN-C60 | Complete separation of church and state is imposed. German and Polish are established as the official languages. |
| | | September | Brzeg | | Rebecca arrives with news: The USE has declared Lower Silesia as a protectorate under its jurisdiction. She then flies off for Linz. | OTTOMAN-C60 | Krenz gets promoted to major in the USE army, still in command of the troops detached from 3Div, plus the remaining von Arnim mercenaries from Leipzig which are being sent to Lower Silesia. |
| | | September | Linz | | Wedding of Noelle Stull and Janos Drugeth. Big event, big swirl, big excuse for celebrating the alliance that beat back the Turks. | OTTOMAN-C61 | Wallenstein has made good on his promise to ennoble Noelle, now Countess of Hommona. |

| | | September | Linz | | The newlyweds are ushered into a private meeting with Ferdinand, Gustav, Mike, Rebecca, and Francisco Nasi. All present are informed that Leopold, Cecelia Renata, Judy Wendell and Minnie are alive, generally good health, and in hiding in Vienna. Noelle finds herself nominated as best candidate for the diplomatic subterfuge needed buy an opportunity to get them out. | OTTOMAN-C61 | Ferdinand requests a rescue by Captain Lefferts. Noelle who points out that this situation is not really Harry's forte, and Rebecca notes that Harry may be an option at a later point, but for the time being diplomatic subterfuge is called for. Plus, he's on assignment far away at the moment. |
| | 17 | September | Copenhagen | | Christening and first official flight of the Danish airship Royal Ann . | NOSHIP-P4 | The following day is 5 days before the Tranquebar flight, which begins the evening of the 23rd. |
| | 18 | September | Copenhagen | | While the Danish Airship Company plans its next move, Captain Anders Kiersted arrives with news of the lost Danish Indian Ocean trade fleet, and of high-value goods waiting in Tranquebar. | NOSHIP-P4 | King Christian presses them to do everything in their power to bring the shipment home. |
| | 18 | September | Copenhagen | | After logistical calculations, hasty preparations begin to send the airship Royal Ann to Tranquebar. Marlon Pridemore will captain the ship. | NOSHIP-P4 | 5 days before the mission launch on the 23rd. A stopover in Venice is planned to permit topping off fuel and picking up trade goods before leaving Europe. |
| | | By late-September | Venice | | A mooring mast is set up at the Murano in expectation of the arrival of the Royal Ann . | NOSHIP-P4 | "according to [Danish] instructions" as of 23 Sept., but may have been planned and in progress earlier. Note: as of OTTOMAN, there are other large airships in operation, so it may not be exclusively for Royal Ann . |
| | 23 | September | Copenhagen | | The Royal Ann lifts off near sunset and sets course for Venice. | NOSHIP-P4 | The only passenger is Niels Lund, who will be the new governor of Tranquebar. A Danish Air Force plane, type unspecified, is present for the sendoff. |
| | 24 | September | Venice | | Royal Ann crosses the Bavarian Alps and reaches Venice in the afternoon. Loading/reloading proceed ASAP. | NOSHIP-P4 | RA's most likely route would take it near the western edge of the theatre of action of the Ottoman conflict, but it has no interaction with those goings-on. |
| | 25 | September | Venice | | Royal Ann lifts off from Venice less than 12 hours after arrival. | NOSHIP-P4 | At least two cargo hatches are not fully secured before launch. |
| | 25 | September | near the Adriatic coast? | | Royal Ann sets down to secure loose cargo hatches. In doing so they scare away attackers engaged in a skirmish nearby. Checking on survivors, they find only one: a young woman. They take her with them. | NOSHIP-P4,5 | She is Estela Diaz Sansão, and claims her father is rich and will pay a ransom. The claim is a bluff: her father was killed in a struggle with pirates, and she has no other close relatives. |
| | 25 | September | Turkey | | Royal Ann passes over Ottoman territory, catching sight of Istanbul in the afternoon and Mt. Ararat in the distance before dusk. | NOSHIP-P4 | They rise to 14,000 feet to avoid mountains overnight, which requires they break out breathing masks. |
| | 26 | September | Persian territory | | Royal Ann continues its voyage, over what was up-time eastern Iran and out to the Indian Ocean. | NOSHIP-P4 | Unexpectedly strong headwinds force more fuel consumption than planned. |
| | 27 | September | Tranquebar | | Royal Ann makes landfall over the subcontinent and crosses over to land at Tranquebar. | NOSHIP-P4 | Overland travel would be over territory of the Vijayanagara Empire and its vassals. |
| | 27 | September | Tranquebar | | Governor Crappé hosts a gathering for Captain Pridemore and new Governor Lund. Crappé takes in the news of the Ring of Fire. | NOSHIP-P5 | Not the first word of the ROF to arrive in Tranquebar (at minimum, the Pelican left Europe in 1634, and foreign ships calling would have their own tales), but earlier info would have been relatively sketchy. |
| | | Late September | Tranquebar | | Marlon Pridemore discovers ghee makes an acceptable fuel for Royal Ann 's engines, providing a means to relieve the fuel shortage. Governor Lund, Estella, and Lund's aide Chander negotiate with the ghee sellers. | NOSHIP-P5 | Estella gets credit for negotiating advice and getting a good price. |

| | | By October? Earlier? | Copenhagen? | | Danes finish development of Sandterne -type hydrogen-lift airships. | inferred from SEAS-Cooper-07 | Sandterne arrives aboard a ship in Gustavus colony in December. Time for the ship to transit the Atlantic unclear: Month? Two? More? May depend on fuel used. Airship needs to be built and crew trained (and get a bit of experience) before departing Europe. |
| | 2 | October | Tranquebar | | Royal Ann has finished loading and departs. They can't quite get clear of an incoming storm, and suffer some damage: Nothing critical, jury-rigging will hold until they reach Denmark if they can keep clear of more storms. | NOSHIP-P5 | The return route will keep clear of mountains to avoid use of breathing masks. |
| | 5 | October | Venice | | Royal Ann reaches Venice. Off- and on-loading is done quickly, so Marlon gives the crew a 6-hour pass. | NOSHIP-P5 | Gunnar proposes to Estela. |
| | 6 | October | Copenhagen | | Royal Ann departs Venice at dawn, and reaches Copenhagen in the afternoon. The city salutes for the airship's successful return. | NOSHIP-P5 | Marlon presents his crew to King Christian. No interaction with war theatre. |
| | | October? November? | Copenhagen? | | Airship Sandterne packed aboard steamship, heading to Wild Coast in South America. | inferred from SEAS-Cooper-07 | Voyage time for December arrival unclear. |
| | | December | Wild Coast/Suriname | | The disassembled airship Sandterne arrives at Gustavus colony aboard Danish steamship. | SEAS-Cooper-07 | |

Expanded and miscellaneous notes

Henri Bex and Collete & Colas Dubois entering and leaving Magdeburg

There's no known actual conflict with the historical details of the seige, but some details of the Dubois' time in Magdeburg may be a little problematic. Pappenheim's forces began the blockade of Magdeburg in the fall of 1630, so Henri would have been taking his charges into a war zone. There's also the question of how they got out of the city (either with horses, or acquiring them once outside). The Imperials had been assaulting and taking the outer defenses over the previous days, but the fighting had paused for a final bid for the city to surrender (Tilly's ambassador was still in the city awaiting a decision by the council when the final assault began). It should be noted that research material with details of the seige was not yet available in digital form and likely harder to access when the story was written compared to when this list is being compiled.

After-the-fact conflict: in "Power to the People" nobody notices any changes to the landscape until crews go out to fix wires. However, after the story was published, the location of the ROF was firmed up and the plant wound up within clear sight of the southern ringwall, with Schloss Schwarzburg visible from the plant ("Schwarzza Falls"). Minor conflict stemming from the early deliberate vagueness vs. later identifiable location.

Frank's M-60

Dug up "less than three weeks" before battle. Exactly 3 weeks before would be June 9, so I'm approximating this as the 10th to 12th mostly due to the phrase "less than three weeks" carrying a connotation of closer to three weeks than to two. A more literal version would be somewhere between the 10th and 15th. Or for "vague is good" purposes, call it "early-mid June."

Battle of the Crapper

From 1632: The fourth day after the battle is the 4th of July, which puts the battle on June 30. There's a bit of ambiguity about "which calendar," but the fact that Mike specifically asks for the wedding of Jeff & Gretchen to be delayed points to him timing it for the Fourth. Grantville would use a Gregorian calendar, so the only question is whether they've switched to the downtime 1631 calendar or are still operating on the 2000 calendar. Since the ROF was a month ago and their new time and place was confirmed within a day, they've had plenty of time to shift to the 1631 calendar. Likely confirmation that the downtime Gregorian calendar is being used by the time of the Crapper is the date put on the "wanted" posters of the tercio personnel who didn't make Gretchen's cut: "...if he is found anywhere in american territory after july 5, 1631...." The prisoners receive this notice the day before the parade & wedding, two days before the deadline.

UPDATE: Date of battle canonized as June 30, 1631 in BARBIE-C3

Flo's meeting with Mary Lee Newhouse and Clara Junker [or Clara Kunzin (Frau Junker)]

By its sequence in the story, the scene where Clara suggests letting the angora rabbits be an income source for poor women takes place in August or September 1631. However, it takes place at Mary Lee Newhouse's house, over margaritas. The first time Clara visits Mary Lee at her house (and is introduced to margaritas) is in the wake of Guffy Pomeroy's death and the Junkers' resulting financial problems – which happens in May or June 1632.

Two possible solutions to the conflict: 1) the meeting takes place at this time but under different circumstances than in the story (e.g., at Cora's over coffee), or 2) this scene should be taking place in the summer of 1632. The second option seems more likely, as by that time Mary Lee and Clara's "margarita meeting" had broken the ice and it is more likely that Clara would be visiting socially. It also allows the scene to take place largely as written.

"Hell Fighters" background discrepancies

"Hell Fighters" has a number of background details that conflict with its nominal timing (e.g., Americans running Franconia fits the situation in Autumn 1632, not Autumn 1631), but the central event -- the New Year's Eve fire -- takes place at the first New Year's after the ROF. Story author Wood Hughs noted that the paper drive was in January 1632 (http://bar.baen.com/index.php?t=msg&th=107424&goto=1042708&#msg_1042708), so the story has to start in 1631.

Date of Rebecca's first talk show

1632-C32 gives a specific date of September 10 for the debut of Rebecca's TV talk show – 1 week before Brietenfeld. In 1636: The Barbie Consortium the Higgins-Schmidt dinner, which takes place on that night, was given a date of Sept. 5. The original Grantville Gazette version of "The Sewing Circle" used a Sept. 10 date, and the text of events in TBC are more in-line with a 10th date, so September 10 is used.

Probable anachronism: In her letter to Flo (the same one where the ram symbol is discussed), Velda mentions that the falcon and eagle symbols are already used by the Air Force. However, the general timeframe of the letters (spring/summer 1632) is about a year before the first flight of the Las Vegas Belle, and there isn't an actual air force until hostilities begin in September 1633.

OTL, von Schwarzenberg (a Catholic) was ousted as chancellor in 1630 by Sigismund von Götzen (a Calvinist like the Elector), who was chancellor until 1637. Time of death of Wilhelm Friedrich von Leuchtenberg (Mechthilde's youngest nephew)

BAVAR-C4 says he “died at Halberstadt eighteen months ago” in January 1634. OTL he died at Halberstadt on 30 August 1631, just 3 months after the sack of Magdeburg and the ROF (i.e., about 28 months before Jan. 1634). Either the reference to 18 months was a miscalculation and the summer of 1631 was intended for his time of death, or he was butterflyed and survived his illness of 1631 but either remained in or returned to Halberstadt for a death in summer 1632.

First meeting of League of Women Voters

The Timeframes list places “The Brillo Letters” in 1632, and the anthem contest is consistent with this; there was to be a presentation of contestants at the LWV organizational meeting, and in Dec. 1632 Meyfarth’s song is mentioned as having won. In one of the letters, Velede Riddle specifies the meeting date as “Thursday the 17th at the public library”. The only month with the 17th on a Thursday in 1632 was June. As June 1632 is in the prime “window” for when the meeting was supposed to have taken place, the 17th was used here. The “on or after” part is to allow for any postponements that took place due to the meeting’s shifting venue (public library --> city hall --> middle school cafeteria), and for general “vague is good” purposes. None of the letters mention postponement, though.

Events relative to the Croat Raid in 1636: The Barbie Consortium

1636: The Barbie Consortium (and “Other Peoples’ Money” [GG03-Huff-03]) assumes the Croat Raid was in early September, whereas it was in early August [see “Timeframe of the Croat Raid note below]. Events that depend on timing relative to the Croat Raid (primarily related to OPM Amsterdam) noted in Chapters 17-18 as happening in August and September have been moved to (respectively) July and August to fit with the timing of the Raid. Other events noted as taking place in August (originally from “Poor Little Rich Girls” [GG04-Goodlett-01], involving Arend Nebel and the attack on Vicky Emerson, Chapters 13-16) do not depend on the timing of the Raid, and remain in August.

Back to main

Timeframe of the Croat Raid

COMPILER’S NOTE: When referencing the Croat Raid, a number of stories (most dating from the early- to mid-2000s) implicitly or explicitly assume a September 1632 timeframe for the raid. While the novel 1632 does end in September, there is a month-long gap between the several-chapters-long finale of the Croat Raid and the final half-chapter about events at Alte Veste. Since for several years there appears to have been an erroneous conventional wisdom about the timing of the raid that still occasionally surfaces, the notes below provide an extended sourcing for placement of the Raid in early August 1632.

Back to main

In 1632-C54, during the assault on the Wartburg, the current time is described as being August of 1632. As the Croat Raid took place the same morning that the Spanish at the Wartburg surrendered, it establishes that the Croat Raid took place in August. The scene where Wallenstein orders Piccolomini to take troops to Suhl (1632-C49) is specifically mentioned as taking place in July. The time between those two events is roughly the time it took the Swabian infantry to march from Wallenstein's camp to Suhl (plus possibly another couple of days because Capt. Gars' scouts observed the battle, before the day of the raid, placing the battle at Suhl a day or two before the battle at Esienach). This points to the raid being relatively early in August. Another point arguing for an early August timeframe is the nature of the face-off between the Swedes and Imperials at Nurnberg: the two armies outstipped the ability of the area to supply them. By not engaging in open combat Wallenstein forced the situation to be a game of chicken with starvation: eventually one of the armies would run so short on food it would disintegrate as a fighting force. With support from Grantville, Gustav Adolf likely had a better supply situation than he did historically, but there are still limits to how long such a standoff could be extended. The historical battle of Alte Veste was September 3. NTL, the battle is said to be a month after Julie's wedding (1632-C61), which is in the days following the Croat Raid.

Departure of Mazarini and Harry Lefferts for Rome

In GALILEO-C1 their departure is said to be "barely a week after the Croat Raid", but these chapters (and related story "Between the Armies") appear to assume a September date for the Raid [see also the note above about the timeframe of the Croat Raid], not the (early) August timeframe given in 1632, so the month of departure is uncertain.

Julie's 1632 Christmas Party: the first? Or not?

Minor discrepancy: "Here Comes Santa Claus" (RF01-Wentworth-14), set in 1632, states that they "didn't do anything last year" (i.e., no public Christmas events in 1631), but "When the Chips are Down" (RF01-Cresswell-09) features a 1631 Christmas festival with decorations around town, speeches, services, a banquet, on-the-sly potato promotion, and a gift exchange. No mention of Santa there, though. Not critical to the main thrust of the story, so count the conflict as minor.

Contact with France & England prior to embassies

From 1633: The embassy to England is met at the docks by people who are expecting them. Rebecca has audiences with King Louis and Richelieu within days of arriving in Paris. Neither group mentions extraordinary delays or difficulties en route beyond normal 17th century travel. This implies some level of prior contact so that the embassies were expected, and that decisions about how to handle them were already made by the time they arrived. From 1634: The Galileo Affair: in a conversation set some weeks before Rebecca's embassy arrives in Paris, Richelieu speaks to Mazarini of "reports from his intendents" on the subject.

Back to main

Note: The following three items are adjacent on the main timeline. The differing colors for the first two (light yellow & brown, rather than the yellow used for other entries) are simply to make it easier to visually distinguish between them. It has no other significance.

Richelieu promoting young men

GALILEO-C1 mentions that Richelieu has been promoting young men, and that Turenne has found "sudden favor". The chapter is set in early spring of 1633. It may anachronistically be alluding to the events of 1633-C16, where Turenne was promoted to general, which takes place months later (shortly before the Battle of Dunkirk, which is in early September). Stripped of the anachronism, it can refer to other persons in other posts. There's room for Turenne's "favor" in the spring to be a lower-level version of attention, but his promotion is definitely after Rebecca's embassy has left Paris, months after the events of GALILEO-C1.

Back to main

Relative timing of events in Paris per GALILEO-C1,C2 and the arrival of Rebecca's embassy per 1633-C1

GALILEO-C1 notes that Mazarini's meeting with Richelieu and other events (the Queen's levee, the assassination attempt, Harry's departure) happen in "early spring", "only four weeks" after he arrived. Rebecca's embassy is said to be expected "in a few weeks". 1633 puts Rebecca's Paris visit in summer. Based on the relative timing of events in 1633, this is estimated to be in mid-summer, likely July. Essen Steel has Josh & Colette Modi arrive in Paris in July, and Rebecca's embassy departed shortly before their arrival. This would put the events a few months apart (somewhere in the teens in terms of weeks). This can be chalked up to an awkward collision of "vague is good": there's no actual conflict, but there are a few lines that imply they are closer together in time than is indicated by events more central to the stories.

Leffert's return to Grantville, and "in charge of this stuff"

Possible anachronism: GALILEO-C5 states Harry returned in the spring. Shortly after his return, it is stated that Nasi "is in charge of this stuff now", meaning information going to foreign powers. There's no information as to whether Francisco and Harry started doing this before the drubbing of Freddie Congden (1633-C17), which likely took place in August. Whether it's an anachronism mainly depends on when Francisco and Harry started acting in this capacity.

Departure of Paris and London Embassies

The bare minimum time (e.g., for a courier) from Grantville to Paris would be about 2 weeks. Figure on 4-8 weeks for a more reasonable pace for the parties involved. No dialogue involves anyone complaining of extraordinary delays, so presumably the travel was relatively uneventful (for 17th century Germany). Also note: They don't necessarily leave on the same day.

Ironclad and timberclad crew selection and training

By April 1634 Simpson has been training crews and officers "for weeks & months." Note: I place this at "by summer or fall" of 1633 based on Simpson's estimates of when rush-completed ironclads could reach Luebeck. Simpson is a thorough man, and knew the crew requirements as soon as the designs were finalized. Naturally, training would be more intense in the later stages, but he would have gotten started with finding, recruiting, and training suitable captains, officers, and crew as early as possible. In September 1633 he was estimating that he could have 2 ironclads to Luebeck by late December, and those estimates would have factored in having two crew compliments that were trained well enough to do it (though probably not as well-trained as he'd prefer).

Dutch relations with Japan in early 1633

Historical : Dutch relations with the Tokugawa shogunate had been strained since an incident on Formosa (Taiwan) in 1628 known as the Nuyts Affair. Trade came to a standstill until Pieter Nuyts, the Dutch factor on Formosa, came to Japan in November 1632 and was placed under house arrest for several years. Inference/speculation: The gifts and presentation given to Iemitsu in August 1633 would have been sent from Europe long before word could have reached the United Provinces that trade had resumed. It is possible that they were sent for the purpose of mollifying the shogun and getting relations back on track. In any event, they were certainly able to build on the improvement that followed the resolution of the Nuyts Affair.

Mary at the Nutcracker practice, Kristina in Grantville

1635: Music and Murder narrows the timeframe of Mary's trip to early November: She's back in Magdeburg by the middle of the month. "Mary's Mafia" provides financial support for the production. They reserve the HS auditorium for 5 nights around New Year's (Wed-Sunday: Dec. 28-Jan1): quite a feat for the highly-demanded facility. Kristina's Grantville residence will eventually (i.e., by 1635) be named "Cair Paravel" after the Narnia palace, but it is unclear if that's started yet. Also unclear whether Caroline Platzer has become a confidante of Kristina yet. She's not in this scene, but it's within the range where she would have started becoming a mentor to the princess. Kristina seems to have the full set of Brillo knick-knacks. This may also be when Kristina sent Gustav the tape recorder as a birthday present (right approximate time frame).

Minor discrepancy: Viennese Waltz with Kremlin Games

WALTZ-C5 is set in late July 1634; Sarah & Heidi's conversation mentions Brandy Bates as engaged to Prince Vladimir. However, KREMLIN-C56 gives a specific date of July 17, 1634 (i.e., mid-July) for Brandy & Vlad's wedding, and so it has nominally already (and recently) taken place by the time Sarah & Heidi talk.

Mazzare's location when he reviews womens' orders proposals

BAVAR puts this scene in Rome, in August, which creates a conflict with "The Monster" (re: time Mazzare leaves Rome and then Venice). However, nothing he's doing here requires that he be in Rome, so it can be considered a minor conflict.

Timing of flight and death of Elector John George of Saxony (and family)

These chapters are in Part 4 of Eastern Front, set in September. However, based on chapter placement and probable army marching times, the Battle of Zwenkau would have taken place early in August, with the army marching on Dresden within a few days. John George had fled Dresden by the time it started marching for the city. Chemnitz is some 60 miles from Dresden, about 3 or 4 days travel for the Elector. The time from the battle to the time he can reach Chemnitz isn't likely to be more than 10 days (and probably closer to 8). Even allowing time to find out Holk has forsaken him and headed for Poland, there's still over 2 weeks left until September. For a man who's fleeing capture, it seems unlikely he'd stay put for two or three weeks so close to his enemies. It's possible (I'd argue likely) that these scenes "actually" take place in August but are placed in Part 4/September because that's where they fit the narrative better. The same can be said for some of the early Krenz/Tata scenes in Dresden, which take place in the same timeframe. That said, the potential difference in timing doesn't make much of a difference to subsequent events, so I'm following the text and placing the events in September.

Gretchen's trip to Grantville, September or October 1635

"a few weeks before coming to Dresden" in early November 1635. Presumably, the trip takes place after it is decided Gretchen can be spared in Magdeburg (EAST-C22, in September) and before the scene in EAST-C33 where Eddie refuses to fly her to Dresden (in October). In the latter scene, she is sufficiently anxious to get to Dresden that it seems unlikely she would risk missing a flight-friendly break in the weather in order to go down to Grantville in the time between that scene and when she actually does fly to Dresden.

Text/Calendar conflicts in No Ship to Tranquebar

Where No Ship for Tranquebar mentions specific dates and also notes their day of the week, there is a discrepancy between the day noted in the text and the day according to the calendar. For example, NOSHIP-P3 notes that the day Marlon first flies Upwind in Copenhagen is "Saturday the thirteenth" (of December 1635). However, by the calendar for December 1635, the 13th was a Thursday (Gregorian calendar; on the Julian calendar it was a Sunday). Similarly, in NOSHIP-P4 the July Fourth cook-out is said to be on a Wednesday, but July 4 was on a Friday in 1636 (Julian: a Monday). Since these are very minor discrepancies that are irrelevant to the plot, the general part of the month (e.g., early, mid, late) is used in lieu of the given date for all except the July 4 party, where the date is significant. Interestingly, December 13 was a Saturday in 1636, and July 4 was a Wednesday in 1635, which raises the possibility that the calendars were inadvertently transposed when the days of the week for those dates were originally looked up.

Timing of Rebecca giving birth in 1636

Per OTTOMAN-C15, Rebecca got pregnant during a visit by Mike after he left Berlin and before he rejoined his division, which suggests the visit had to be after the scene in EAST-42 of Rebecca relaying Mike's message from Berlin which included the Billy Conn reference, which is in (early?) November 1635. Nine months later is late July or early August 1636. She's noted as being pregnant while visiting Mike in Freising at the end of May 1636, but there is no mention of pregnancy (nor child, for that matter) in any scenes after that (i.e., the election and as secretary of state). Nothing to indicate the baby was lost. She may or may not have still been pregnant in the "election war room" scene in OTTOMAN-C32 (where she's sitting at a desk in her own home), but is most likely no longer pregnant by the scene in OTTOMAN-C35 where the FoJP leaders go over the projected election outcome. That scene ends with the telegram from Linz (presumably about the Turks taking Vienna), after which Rebecca soon embarks on several diplomatic missions and appears frequently enough that advanced pregnancy and giving birth would be mentioned at some point. If the birth was during the election period or immediately afterward (and everything went smoothly), Rebecca could easily be recovered, back to business, and the child in the care of nannies and nursemaids by the time of the post-election FoJP meeting.

| Release | Notes | Fully incorporated |
|---------------------------|--|---|
| v1 30-Sep-2014 | The initial release incorporates events from the "main line" novels plus selected major events from other novels and anthologies in the overall series, and currently only a few events from the Grantville Gazette. | 1632; 1633; 1634: The Baltic War; 1635: The Eastern Front; 1636: The Saxon Uprising |
| v2 2-Dec-2014 | Incorporated Ram Rebellion ; changed the citation style to be more in synch with the established format used in the Timeframes list; added cover, guide, and version history pages; added jump links on cover page to (hopefully) improve navigation and reduce excessive scrolling. | 1634: The Ram Rebellion |

Structure

The primary section of the timeline (Excel tab “Overall timeline 1631 and after”) lists events in – as best as can be determined – chronological order.

The major divisions are by year. Each year is also noted by years before and after the Ring of Fire, with 1631 set as ROF 0. Years before the ROF have minus numbers, years after have plus numbers (1629 is ROF -2, 1634 is ROF +3). This is to help facilitate comparison of uptime and downtime dates and perspectives. (On the uptime scale, ROF 0 is the year 2000.) For example, The (first) Battle of White Mountain was in 1620 (ROF -11), which for downtimers is as recent as the fall of the Berlin Wall is for uptimers (1989, which is also ROF -11).

Guide to the columns

M: Major events, flagged with red shading

Date and Month/season: Specific dates are used when given, are historical, or can be reasonably determined by their relation to a known date. Far more often the timing is less specific, and the notation needs to be more general. In those cases, months, seasons, or by/before/between timeframes are given. Question marks (“?”) flag a higher level of uncertainty about when an event takes place (or where).

Location: Notes the location of a particular event. These may be specific places or general areas, depending on the nature of the event and the information available.

Seq: Sequence. Used to note “floating blocs” of events where their relation to each other can be determined, but the relation relative to other events is unclear. An event is noted with a letter. Minus or plus signs indicate days before or after the event, respectively. If the code appears without a number, then it happens on the same day as the marked event. A listing of codes which currently appear is shown to the right of the screen shot.

Event and Citation: Self-explanatory. Citation uses the Story ID citation format established in the Timeframes list. An explanation of the format used in this version can be found in the Source List tab of the Excel file.

Notes: Comments on sourcing, determination timing, and/or other miscellaneous information. For items with more extensive notes, the box is highlighted in yellow and linked to the corresponding entry on the Misc Notes tab.

Event Citations use the story ID format developed for the Story Timeframes list: SOURCE-Author-[order within the source]. For example, "Bypass Surgery" by Virginia DeMarce, is the 12th story in 1634: The Ram Rebellion, so it has an ID of RAM-DeMarce-12.

A "-C#" indicates the chapter number (#) in novels and other stories that have a clear chapter structure.

For the mainline novels and some other non-anthologies, the author name and the order indicator "00" is left out of the citation for brevity (e.g., "1632-C1" rather than "1632-Flint-00-C1").

Only fiction articles are included in the lists below. Any event timing drawn from non-fiction articles will be identified in the notes for the event.
